Open Mic Night!

Do you have a desire for the spotlight? Maybe you have a talent you want to share with the world, but think a spontaneous lunch room performance will get people laughing at you, not with you?

Murrell Library has an amazing solution for you! Perform at this month's Open Mic Night! On April 6th at 7:00 pm join the rest of the talented MVC students, staff and faculty in the Library's Reading Room and do your thing!

Feel free to dance, sing, do Improv, tell jokes, read poetry, or amaze the crowd with whatever appropriate talent you have.

Not interested in performing just yet? Do not fret!

This is not like Fight Club; you can talk about Open Mic Night. If someone is performing and you like what they're doing, feel free to clap, holler, whistle, or make any other supportive sound you like, and if it is your first time at Open Mic Night you do not have to perform.

Hope to see you there!

Oil Up @ Your Library

Olive oil is considered a must-have ingredient in today's American kitchens. Some of you may not believe this to be true... well, just search for olive oil on FoodNetwork.com and rummage through the 15,462 recipes which call for this fabulous ingredient!

For those of you that are curious as to why olive oil has become such a mainstay of American popular culture chefs, make sure you come to Dr. Warnock's presentation on the 13th at 7:00 pm! He has the answers to all the questions... and he will break it down in plain English, none of this culinary lingo which everyday cooks are unfamiliar with.

Does this event not put a good taste in your mouth? When everything is said and done simply let your palate be your guide. Dr. Warnock will provide samples of several different oils for comparison. Yum!

Work Study that Work

In the 1986 film Highlander, Sean Connery's character leads the world to believe "in the end, there can be only one." Usually the library feels the same way about our AWESOME Work Study Award recipient, but this month has been AWESOMAFIED by two breakthrough work performances!

Congratulations Always Young and Toussaint Tindal! Both of these workers are new to Valley this year and encompass the qualities needed to call themselves AWESOME!

You may remember Always from Singled-Out... She was the sassy one with all the right answers, yes, the lucky lady that won Chris McDaniels' heart. Well, Always informed me that she loves a lot of things; music, dancing, track, watching Finding Nemo with her boyfriend of 3 years (NOT Chris McDaniels), she only agreed to participate in the library's dating game to win the gift card!

I bet there are several people who recognize, but don't REALLY know Toussaint. Why? Because he's on the track team, always working in the library (on and off the clock), and majoring in Hospitality Management, but is so shy you may not have had the pleasure of chatting with him.

Interested parties should know that it's not too late to seek him out... after all the only other place he might be is with his Blosser Boys!

Once again, congratulations to BOTH our AWESOME work study!

Dear Libby,

I got a really creepy email from this guy in IT saying something about the future of my server space. The email mentioned synchronization of students, trying to "clean" all the student systems, and something about moving my precious data before the end of July.

Was this guy a cyborg contacting me from the future? Am I the MVC version of John Connor? Should I be worried about an even more powerful cyborg coming to kill me? What will happen to the world if I ignore the email?

I'm a little on edge about this...

let me know what you think I should do.

Future Student

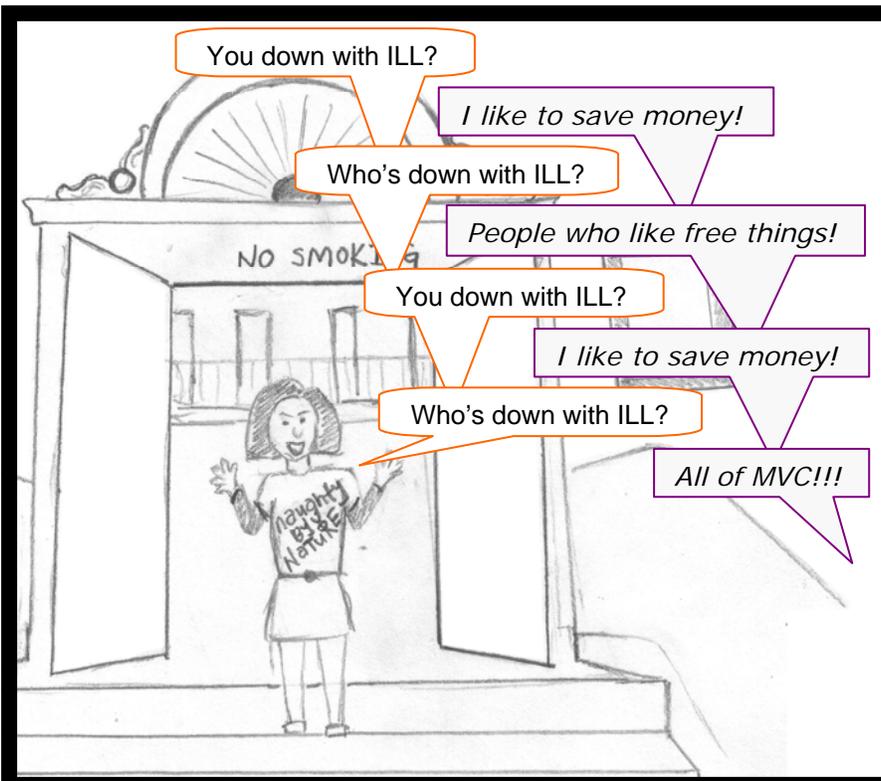

Dear Student,

Are you kidding? You're being contacted by a cyborg from the future and you think it's best to ignore the warning? You have to act quickly! Reply to the email with exactly the same questions you asked me. I think "IT" will... get a kick out of your ridiculous reaction to a MASS e-mail!
