FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MISSOURI VALLEY COLLEGE PRESENTS FIRST ANNUAL MAASTRICHT INSTITUTE OF ENTREPRENEURSHIP APRIL 3-6

Featured speakers provide U.S. and European perspectives.

Marshall, Mo. (March 2, 2006)—Missouri Valley College and the city of Maastricht, Netherlands announce the first annual Maastricht Institute of Entrepreneurship April 3-6, 2006 on the Missouri Valley College campus in Marshall, Mo. The Institute will feature guest speakers and entrepreneurs from the United States and Europe, representing foundations, politics, the financial industry, and education.

The Maastricht Institute is named after the city of Maastricht, Netherlands, and is an outgrowth of experiences and friendships among residents of Maastricht and several cities in the United States.

The goal of the Maastricht Institute of Entrepreneurship is to foster an atmosphere of receptiveness and creativity toward comparative entrepreneurial processes. The Institute will compare and contrast the entrepreneurial business environment within the United States with that of the other countries highlighting domestic and international philosophies. It will examine different practices and fields to create a climate of creativity relative to entrepreneurial projects.

The Institute’s format includes lectures, seminars, and round-table discussions. Attendees have the option of attending two or four days.

Dr. Benoit Wesly, chairman and C.E.O. of the Xelat Group in Maastricht, Netherlands and noted Dutch international business entrepreneur, will deliver the keynote address. Other speakers and moderators include: Mr. Greg Steinhoff, director of the Missouri Department of Economic Development; Dr. Robert Strom, director of research and policy of the Kauffman Foundation; Dr. John Ashford, chairman and C.E.O. of the Hawthorn Group; Mr. Johan Boermann, managing director of Media Group Limburg (MGL); Dr. Bruce Morgan, chairman, president, and C.E.O. of Valley State Bank; Mr. Gerd Leers, Mayor of the city of Maastricht, Netherlands; Dr. Ed Elliott, Central Missouri State University president emeritus; Mr. Tommy White, former vice president of marketing for Marion Laboratories; Mrs. Ruth Coolen, head of marketing and communication for Maastricht Aachen Airport in Maastricht, Netherlands; Mr. Oscar Tshibanda, managing partner, Tshibanda & Associates, LLC; Mr. Ron Engel, agent for Principal Life Insurance and owner of Engel Family Vineyards; Mr. Gene Harmon, retired chairman, president, and CEO of Harmon Industries; Mr. R. Mr. Greg Steinhoff

Director, Missouri Department of Economic Development

In keeping with the Blunt administration’s pledge to lead Missouri in a new direction, Greg Steinhoff comes to the helm of the state’s Department of Economic Development with a wealth of practical business experience and a fresh vision for the department. He hopes to use that experience to improve efficiency in all divisions of DED, while also reducing barriers that currently exist to successful economic growth. As director, Steinhoff is committed to working with community and business leaders around the state to build the kind of entrepreneurial business climate that will keep current businesses strong and also stimulate new business growth and job creation. In announcing his appointment on January 18, Governor Matt Blunt said Steinhoff had the right kind of experience to meet his administration’s goal of creating good family supporting jobs in all areas of Missouri. Blunt said: “Greg Steinhoff has a keen understanding and appreciation of the challenges facing employers and entrepreneurs. I know that Greg will be an effective manager of the Department of Economic Development and an outstanding emissary to business leaders who are interested in relocating to, or expanding their businesses in Missouri.” A resident of Columbia, Steinhoff founded Option Care of Columbia in 1985. His home base services company grew to employ over 400 people in mid-Missouri. Steinhoff is well known for his involvement in local community activities, including Chairman of the Board for the Columbia Chamber of Commerce and Columbia Area United Way, serves as treasurer for the Board of Trustees of Boone Hospital Center; a board member of the Regional Economic Development, Inc., Missouri Innovation Center, and Rainbow House; and co-chair of the committee that planned the Columbia Activity and Recreation Center. As a result of his civic leadership, the Columbia Chamber of Commerce recognized Steinhoff with its 2004 Outstanding Citizen Award. Among his many other honors are the Sam Walton Award as Business Leader of the Year, the Businessman of the Year Award from the Columbia Business Times, and the Humanitarian of the Year Award from the Arthritis Foundation. He holds bachelor degrees from both the University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Pharmacy and Westminster College.

He was once a country & western disc jockey, then campaign manager for a number of senators and governors and consultant to foreign political parties. John Ashford now serves as a senior political communications advisor to Fortune 500 companies. He is the founding chairman of The Hawthorn Group, an international public relations firm based in Alexandria, Virginia. A native of Missouri, where the Kansas City Star dubbed him at age 27 a “kingmaker” in Missouri politics, Ashford spent a decade with the late and legendary Matt Reese, “godfather” of grassroots politics. His clients have included a broad range of industry leaders in the alcohol beverage, cosmetics, defense, education, electronics, gaming, oil and gas, and transportation sectors. He is especially well known for his work in the electric utility industry. Over the last 20 years he has worked for Detroit Edison, Entergy, Exelon, Salt River Project, as well as Southern Company and all its operating companies. Well known in Washington as a strategist and crisis manager, Ashford has frequently been quoted on crisis situations on NBC-TV, in the WASHINGTON POST and by the Associated Press. He attended Missouri State University and graduated from Missouri Valley College. He received his Masters in Public Administration from Harvard University. He is a member of the American Association of Political Consultants, the National Press Club, the Harvard Club, the Missouri Society, the International Churchill Society, the Scotch Malt Whisky Society, and the American Guild of Organists (“...but I no longer do weddings, funerals or commencements”).

Mr. Johan Boermann

and chairs the real estate committee for the foundation. He holds a bachelor's of science degree in economics from Kansas State University. In addition to directing NAI Cohen-Esrey’s day-to-day asset/property management and brokerage activities, Harris supervises regional operations and corporate ventures, serves in a client liaison capacity, provides consulting services, coordinates corporate administration and performs in a business development role. He is also actively involved in the development and acquisition of income property.

Mr. Ron Engel
Owner, Engel Family Vineyards, Napa Valley, California and Agent, Principal Life Insurance
In some languages, Ron Engel’s last name means angel. Is it pure coincidence, then, that Ron’s business is soaring? Principal Life’s 2005 Producer of the Year – his second consecutive honor – has much for which to be thankful. Thankful for the influential advisors who refer him. Thankful for the “tremendous support systems” of his agency and company to help producers grow their business. Thankful for a career that allows him the freedom to pursue interests like amateur wrestling and his Napa Valley vineyard, Engel Family Vineyards (his labels feature a halo). In today’s complex financial services world, Ron’s an example of “old school”; he relies on referrals and focuses almost solely on life insurance. He maintains a humble demeanor in an industry that’s often high energy, high pressure. And in 1974 when he entered UCLA’s Master’s of Business Administration program, he had the lowest entrance exam score of 300 students (one of whom was company Chairman and CEO Barry Griswell!). So some may say it’s a miracle this son of a painting contractor has risen above the ranks twice in a row as top producer. Ask Ron about his success, and he credits it to building relationships – with clients, professional advisors and home office staff. These days Ron doesn’t have much time for seeking new business; existing clients and advisor referrals keep him busy. But although a fraction of his cases represent a large chuck of his premiums – like many high-selling producers – Ron doesn’t ignore the small client. “I feel an obligation that even if a case is $250 annual premium, it’s like if you’re a priest - you don’t preach based on how wealthy people are; you accept the poor people too.”

Mr. Ralph Pfremmer
President and CEO, Pfoodman, St. Charles, Missouri
With over 25 years of food service experience, Ralph Pfremmer’s operational career spans from local family restaurants to nationally-recognized culinary establishments. He studied Culinary Arts and Hospitality Services Management at Forest Park College in St. Louis and apprenticed under Golden Toque and famed executive Chef Wolfgang Bier at the St. Louis Club in Clayton. He later applied his management and operational skills in fine restaurants spanning from California and Arizona to Washington and Texas. His career highlights include food and beverage director for Washington University and Director of Dining Services at Lindenwood University in St. Charles, MO. He also acted as Regional Dining Services Account Manager for MCI Worldcom, as well as Bank of America. His knowledge and experience has been vital in the opening of over 40 restaurants, thereby providing sound strategy to new business and development. On a personal note, Ralph puts exercise high on his list of priorities. He competes in top amateur road and off-road masters competitive cycling events throughout Midwest. As a member of Team VeloForce an elite bicycle team sponsored by Michelob Ultra, Savvis and Big Shark Bicycles, he is known for his motivating efforts in business and sport. To Ralph, personal success comes from convincing others to pursue the health benefits of fitness, performance and achievement.

Mr. Gene Harmon
Retired Chairman, President, and CEO, Harmon Industries, Blue Springs, Missouri
Gene Harmon began his career as sales engineer for Harmon Industries in 1961. Over the course of his 40-plus year career, Harmon would also serve as VP of sales and engineering, president and CEO, and chairman of the board. Although retired, Harmon still serves as a consultant for GE Harris Harmon Railway Technology, LLC (formerly Harmon Industries). As consultant, Harmon is the -more-liaison/spokesperson with the U.S. Government in rail transportation. Harmon holds a BSEE from the Georgia Institute of Technology.
